Religious Education – The Journey of a Lifetime – Bryan Jessup and Jillian Mooney

From cradle to grave, we humans search for meaning and love. How do we take care of our spirits in a difficult world? How do we learn to be grateful even in the presence of challenges? How do we learn to have peace, compassion and joy at the center of our souls? And how do we “leave tracks” so those who come after us might have a way to follow?

Sunday, March 13 – 9 and 11 a.m.

“Transformed by Generosity” – Richard Kossow and Bryan Jessup

In this service we will contemplate how opening our hearts in generosity to the people and organizations around us adds to the satisfaction we experience in life. Giving and receiving with openness and empathy increases the flow of the love we feel for ourselves and others. We are all in this world together, and when we embrace it and share with generosity in our interactions we feel our oneness.

Sunday, March 20 – 9 and 11 a.m.

Why Love Rode To Town on a Donkey – Bryan Jessup and Paula Elizabeth Jones

On Palm Sunday, the teacher Jesus rode into Jerusalem in mock splendor, not on the back of a war horse, but on a donkey. Even with that, he was made into a hero, but his message was that each person needs to be a hero or heroine for themselves and for others. He set an example and asked not that his followers worship him, but that each, in their own way, follow in his footsteps.

Sunday, March 27 – 9 and 11 a.m.

The Celtic Vision of Beauty and Light – Marilyn Montgomery

In the ancient teachings of the Celtic World, the universal themes of Beauty and Light were vitally important doorways into the dignity of Silence, the profundity of Stillness, the joy of Life, and the Grace of Pure Presence. On this Easter Sunday, to celebrate the returning of the Light and the Beauty of the Spring, Marilyn Montgomery will share reflections, meditations, hymns and teachings from this wisdom tradition, including the words of Celtic mystic and poet John O'Donohue.
