Seven Billion People Looking for Love – Rev. Bryan Jessup

This is “Justice Sunday” in the UUA. Cornel West says, “Justice is what love looks like in the public square.” Can love ever prevail among humans on this planet? Here at the beginning of April (a month where we celebrate fools) can we dare to work for that love even though it often looks like a fool’s errand? On this Sunday we also welcome new members to our effort.

April 10 – 9 and 11 a.m.

Hearing from Hoopa – Rev. Bryan Jessup and Thomas Joseph

Young people and adults from the Hoopa reservation will talk with us about what is happening in their lives. They will introduce us to the “Native Lives Matter” movement, of which they are a part. They will also talk with us about how we can support them in their efforts to let the waters of their rivers flow and the people of their culture stand again on the Earth in a healthy way.

April 17 – 9 and 11 a.m.

Music Sunday – The HUUF Choir, Elisabeth Harrington, Levi Walls

Elisabeth Harrington, the HUUF Choir and musical friends and members of the Fellowship will combine their talents to create an amazing Sunday of music. Come and have your spirit lifted by instrumental music and song.

April 24 – 9 and 11 a.m.

“Change the Story, Change the Future” – Joanna Welch and members of the HUUF Earth Day Services and Social Action committees

In this service we will consider how we live on the Earth and how we can improve our practices so the planet is better protected and endangered species can survive. It will also focus on how living in a more mindful, less wasteful way can deepen our spirits as well. The presentation will be based on a recent group study of the book “Change the Story, Change the Future,” in which author David Korten presents an alternative to the trends he believes could destroy life on Earth. Presenter Joanna Welch is a life-long environmentalist whose goal is to be part of the force that heals the Earth.
